What's New?

The site is really starting to take shape. Concrete is well underway at both the new dive vessel and the new competition/recreation pool. The first set of low walls at the dive vessel are formed and will be ready to pour early next week. After these walls are poured, the high walls will be formed prepping the vessel for the final wall pour. Over at the new competition/recreation pool, the first half of the concrete base has been poured and the second half sits ready for the next phase.

Footings and foundations on the new pool house are ongoing and should be completed within the next couple weeks. The concrete slab and masonry walls for the pool house are right around the corner!

The Past Few Weeks

- Pouring of the concrete base for the new competition/recreation pool (south end)
- Forming/reinforcing of the new competition/recreation pool (north end)
- Forming and reinforcing of the low walls at the new dive vessel
- Forming/pouring of the foundation walls at the new pool house

Looking Ahead

- Pouring of the low walls at the new dive vessel
- Pouring of the concrete base for the new competition/recreation pool (north end)
- Underground plumbing at the new pool house
- Concrete slab at the new pool house
- Scarifying of the plaster at the existing lap pool

Above: Reinforcing at the north half of the new competition/recreation pool is complete and ready for the pour.

Below: The concrete base for the new dive well has been poured and wall reinforcing is well underway.

DID YOU KNOW?

With the rebuilding of the pool areas, there will be two locations where competitions can be held. Along with the renovations at the existing six lane lap pool, there will now be an all new eight lane competition/recreation pool. This will open up an amazing amount of opportunities for the pool community to host competitions and events for years to come.
